This book addresses some of the most relevant security subjects after 9-11, counter-terrorism and crisis management. Its focus is mainly the Western Balkan region, the most risky and threatened region in Europe. The Kosovo crisis, Bosnian problem of state coherence, the Macedonian unpredictable situation in combination with high level of transnational crime, illegal immigration, smuggling, corruption, bad economic situation and post-war frustrations strongly indicate the need to address preventive and reactive policies and strategies in the region. The book was written mainly by the experts from the Western Balkans, meaning that it contains authentic views and insights on the crises, crisis management, terrorism and counter-terrorism in the region. The importance of this book is high also due to undisputable influence of security situation in the Western Balkans on European and even global security.
