JOURNAL OF ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE | COVID-19 STATEMENT

The current COVID-19 crisis is affecting many lives, and also research initiatives. At JAD we are continuing our efforts, working from home where possible, to continue assessing papers for publication to progress advances in Alzheimer's research. We appreciate the time and efforts of our editors, authors, and reviewers to make this possible. It is understandable that extensions or reassignments may be needed, in which case we ask you to let us know when so desired (by email to: editorial@j-alz.com). We wish you all strength in these trying times and hope to see you all remain healthy as we move through this.
